Summer - The Thirsty Months

Conserve water and lower your water bill by following the advice and counsel of Wolfram Alderson the Global Gardener.

Lack of water can lead to deforestation, drought, migration and famine. Having said all of that, we know that in Southern California, probably the most painful water experience we face personally is our water bill.

Yet, all of us are aware that we all share the responsibility of conserving our liquid assets, of all types, and there are several ways to approach this challenge.

Think in terms of strategies for conserving water, and money, by considering ten target steps in your landscape program. Start with your plant palette. The idea is to plant smart. "Xeriscape" by landscaping with slow-growing, drought-tolerant plants (especially perennials and natives), grasses, ground-covers, shrubs and trees to conserve water and reduce yard trimmings. It's automatic. Less irrigation immediately translates to less maintenance and more savings. These tough plants really work for you too. They search harder for nutrients and reduce the need to water...beneficial to the soil...the environment and your budget! From your plant palette let's move on to landscape design. Strategically speaking, a lot depends on grading. What you want to do is to grade to prevent runoff and excess drainage. Reduce the slope angle and breaking slopes with berms and plateaus. This slows water flow, allowing water to percolate down instead of washing away. Add the creation of continuous plant canopies that prevent water evaporation from sun and wind and you are really preserving that liquid asset, water, as well as your bank account. Space plants so that canopies touch.

Let your grass grow and avoid over-fertilizing as part of your maintenance program, number three in our ten step program. Raise the mower blades and lower those water bills. Taller grass encourages roots to grow deeper, protects the root system from the sun and retains moisture longer in the topsoil. Slow down growth with slow growth time release fertilizers. This cuts water requirements. Always use fertilizers that include iron and other trace minerals. Build your soil with compost and mulch, create ground covers with green manures... legumes and grasses ...to add fertility and organic matter to your soil.

To become a steward of water think about collecting rain water. It's free! Use commercially constructed cisterns or make your own, and divert water from your roof. It is important to protect your collected water so that it will not become a breeding ground for mosquito larvae. Also, look for ways to reclaim what we call "gray water,"...bath water...dishwater, both can be used in the garden. Use detergents that are safe and biodegradable in the garden. There are several that are effective for your uses in the home too, in spite of what you may hear. Try it! Irrigation and all around good watering practices are all part of your strategic plan as are timely repair of your watering system and becoming a significant member of the container culture. Non-porous containers, including those coated inside with glaze, and self-watering guard against water loss. Let's make a deal not to use un-glazed earthenware. Pot for water retention and repot when your container is root bound. Repotting, root pruning and rejuvenation of soil mix all are part of the strategy to help containers retain water. And finally, awareness and adaptation. Become water aware and change with the seasons. Make water conservation part of your daily life. As the seasons change, so should your irrigation schedule. Consider light, wind, temperature and rainfall and adjust your strategy accordingly. Through these strategies, and others of your own, you become a global gardener recognizing the delicate interconnections, and conserving natural resources, in order to make a difference in the world, even if it's just in your own home and garden.

Gourmet Grazing at Baldwin Bonanza Preview Party

More than 250 "first nighters" enjoyed that very special experience of a dazzling late afternoon and balmy early evening in Spring, to be found only on the grounds of The Arboretum, at the Baldwin Bonanza Preview Party. Gourmet grazing alfresco, and a fabulous display of plants and trees as part of the Preview Sale, created an atmosphere of sociability and relaxation for guests, who, for the most part, took their leave with reluctance only as darkness fell.

Before The Arboretum, there was Burkard Nursery

(CAF is proud to announce that Burkard Nurseries, Inc. is the thirteenth (gardener's dozen) nursery to give a ten percent discount to Foundation Members (sale items excluded). "They specialize in specialization.")

Hans and Rosa Burkard opened a nursery to serve the gardening needs of Pasadena residents in 1937. This began a tradition of providing quality products and personalized service that has guided Burkard Nurseries over the years. Today, under the management of Frank Burkard, Jr., their grandson, the Nursery is a must-stop destination for gardeners and landscape designers because of the substantial inventory and the reputation for horticultural knowledge. The sizable Burkard stock includes a variety of herbs, rare and exotic trees, shrubs, ground covers, Japanese maples, vegetables, seasonal annuals, perennials, and South African bulbs. The nursery currently carries more than 450 varieties of roses including Austins, Antiques, Moderns, Classics, Grandifloras, Teas, Climbers, and Miniatures.

When it comes to the enjoyment of the seasons for the area residents, Burkard Nurseries goes to great lengths to search out novel products.

Burkard Nurseries, located at 690 North Orange Grove Boulevard (corner of Lincoln) in Pasadena, is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Saturday, and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday. Frank arrives at 4:30 a.m. and rarely turns off the lights before 7 p.m. While other families have the kitchen or living room as their center, the Burkards, including 14-year-old Elizabeth, 12-year-old Anne, and 8-year-old Caroline, enjoy keeping the Nursery as the family focal point.

As did his father, Frank Burkard, Jr. "apprenticed" in the family business at a young age. He first sensed this "calling" as an Eagle Scout when he began giving nature tours in Eaton Canyon, training the others in his patrol. His grandfather was his role model with greenhouse planting, while his father counseled with the proper college agenda.

When asked how she felt about her parents' business, Caroline said in passing, "It's good." Then she turned to Penny with the thought that was uppermost, "Mom, I want to help." That sounds like the fourth generation Burkard Nurseries, Inc.

Frank currently manages the Nursery with the help of his wife Penny. Burkard Nurseries supports numerous civic organizations including the Tournament of Roses, The Arboretum of Los Angeles County, Descanso Gardens, the Junior League of Pasadena, and South Pasadena Beautiful Association. Both Frank and Penny received Bachelor of Science degrees in Ornamental Horticulture from California State Polytechnic University, Pomona. 🌿

Earthly Delights and Balcony Planting Featured in the New Books in the Gift Shop

Earthly Delights
Tubs of Tomatoes and Buckets of Beans
By Jack Kramer
$15.95

No matter where you live or how limited your space, learn how to grow fresh, healthy vegetables and herbs in containers every day of the year.

There is nothing better than a red, juicy tomato picked fresh from the vine to add to that special salad. Or, how about the aromatic combination of fresh rosemary, tarragon and chives to spice up that grilled chicken? Now, one of America's foremost garden experts shares his secrets for growing vegetables and herbs in year-round containers, a safe and organic environment.

Library/Lecture Hall Renovation

Renovation on the Library/Lecture Hall building begins in July, 1997, with completion scheduled hopefully by October 15, according to Superintendent of The Arboretum, John Provine. Because of construction in this area, a temporary visitor entrance will be created at the gateway below the Gift Shop. Walkers may enter

Monday through Friday, before 9 a.m., through the service gate.

Early walking on weekends is suspended during the construction period. ☼

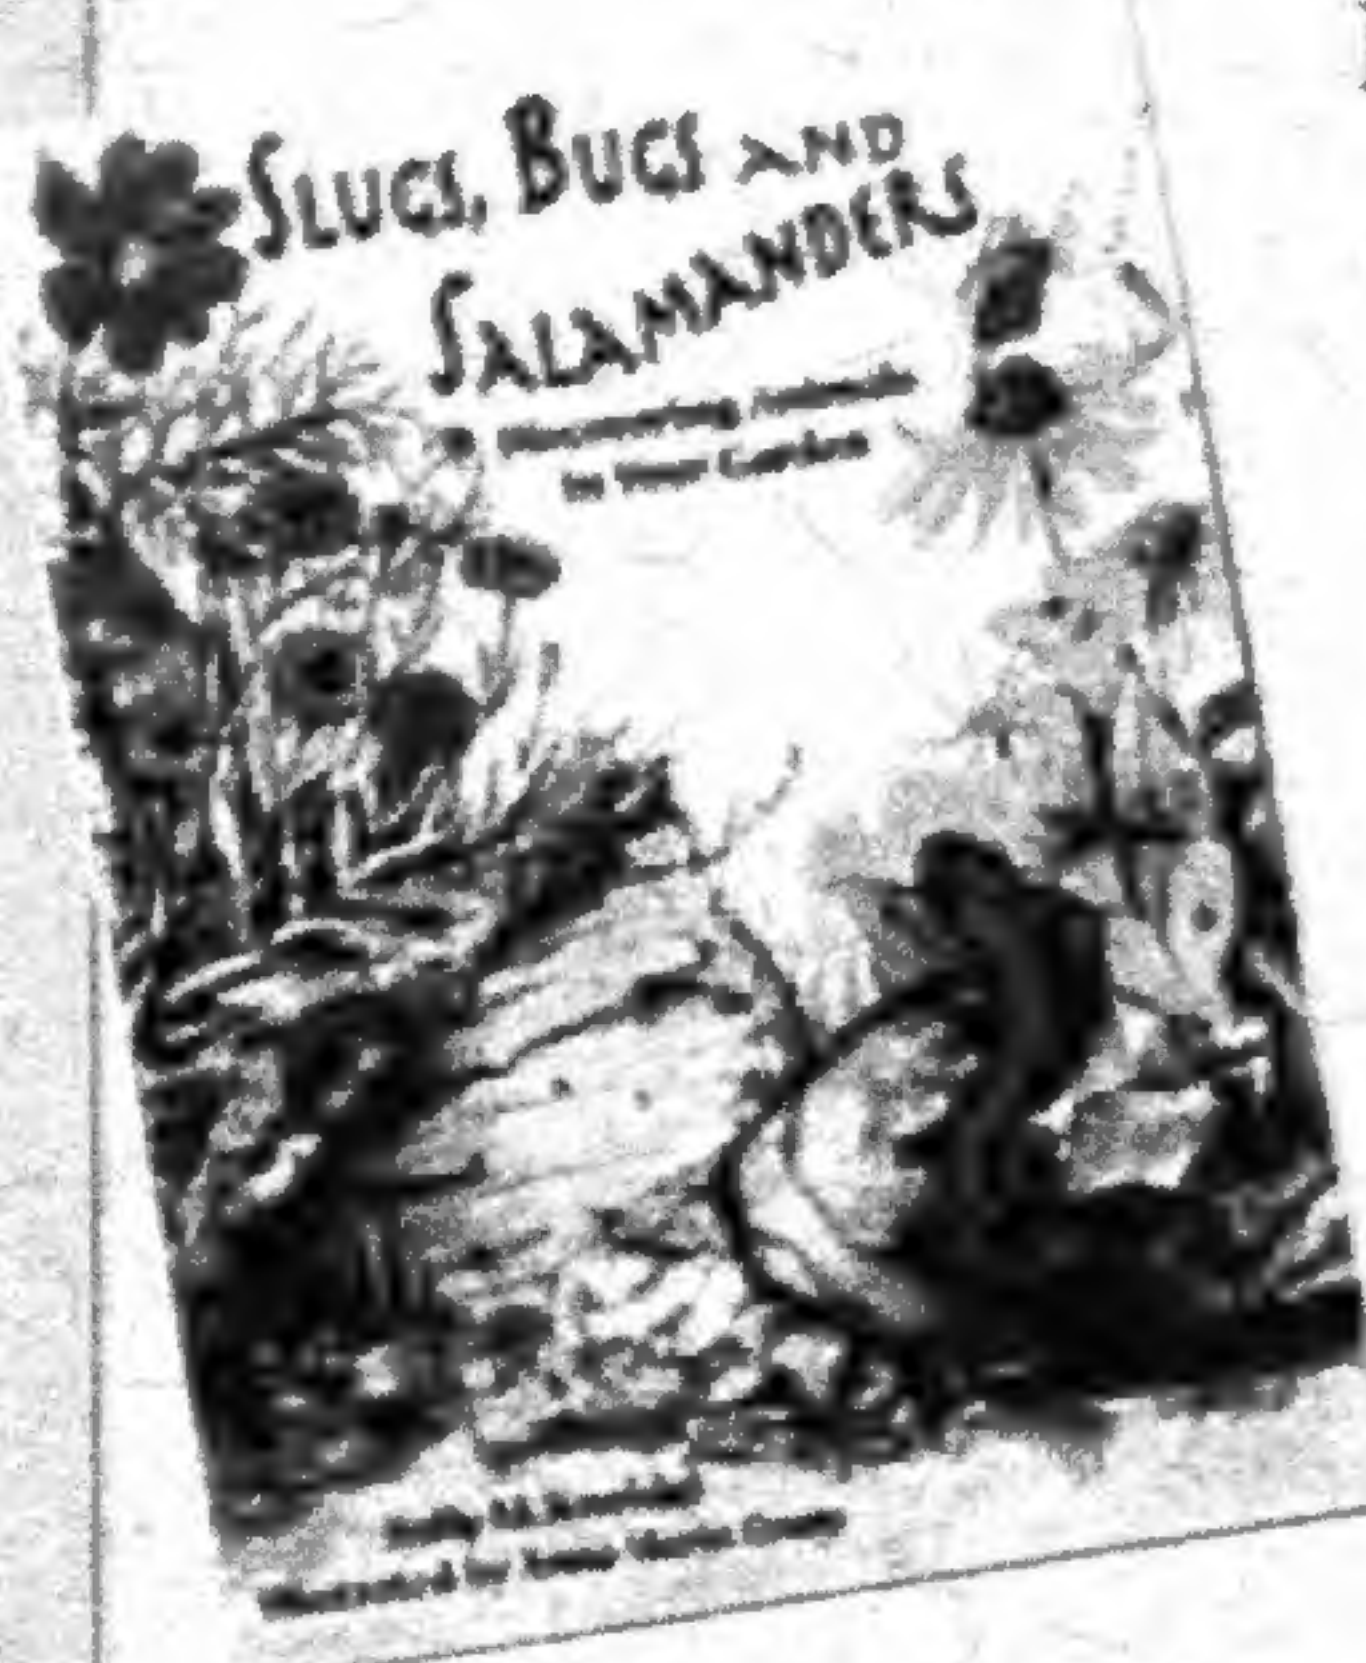

Balcony, Terrace and Patio Gardening
By Margaret Davis
$17.95

Gardening expert Margaret Davis provides enthusiasm, inspiration and practical advice to small-space gardeners in this illustrated guide.

"Challenges are the breath of life to gardeners," according to author Margaret Davis. Today the average American property is smaller than it was just a few years ago, but even in the limited space of a balcony, terrace or patio, beautiful gardens can offer a soothing retreat from our busy, crowded world. Written especially for people who live in apartments, condominiums or townhouses and units with balconies, Davis provides a host of recommendations for suitable plants, many of which are illustrated by full-color photographs.

Slugs, Bugs and Salamanders
Discovering Animals in Your Garden
By Sally Kneidel, Illustrated by Anna-Maria Crum

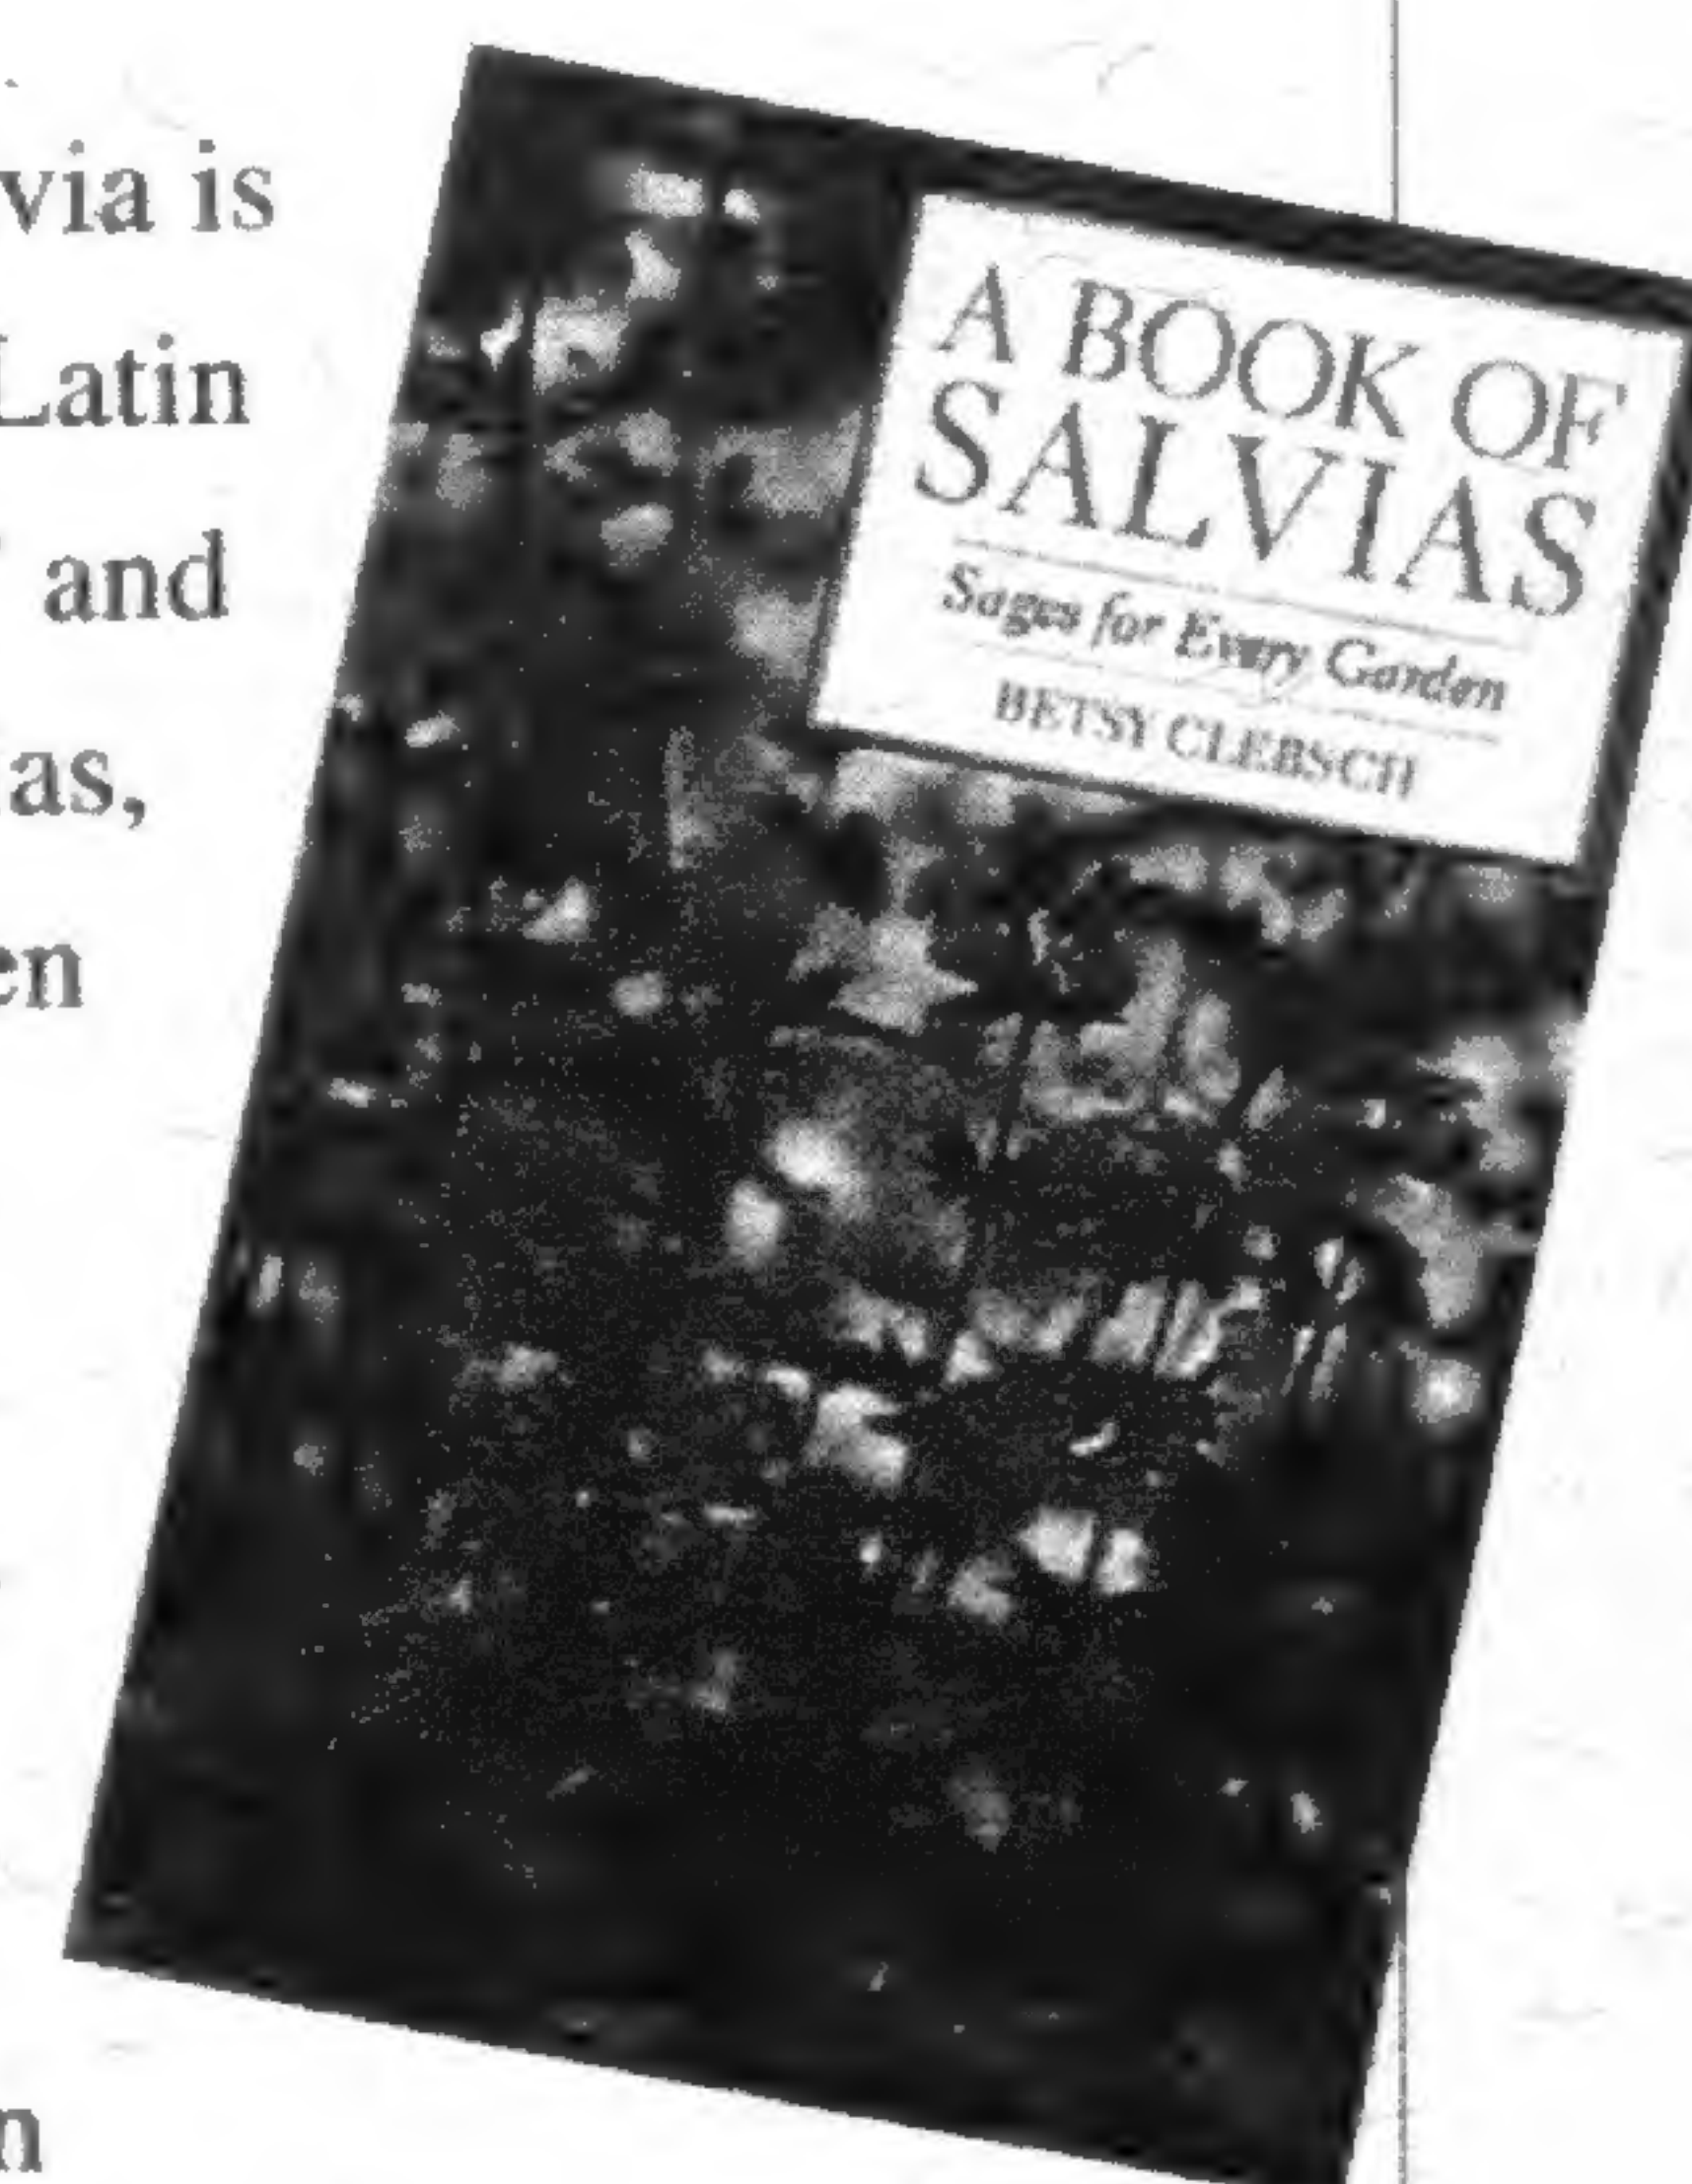

Youngsters will discover a world of animals in their gardens with this delightful collection of information and activities.

If you aren't fond of slugs and bugs, you might be pleased to discover that salamanders will help control them in your garden, while lizards will wolf down aphids, flies, moths and caterpillars. And for those of you who prefer something sweeter, nectar and pollen attract butterflies and hummingbirds. For those who haven't begun a garden, the first chapter provides information for starting plants and caring for a garden. Other sections include the helpful and harmful plant eaters, predators of the plant eaters and the decomposers. Ideal for children, parents and animal-or garden-watchers everywhere.

A Book of Salvias
By Betsy Clebsch
Drawings by Carol D. Barner
$29.95

The word salvia is derived from the Latin salvare, "to heal," and for centuries salvias, or sages, have been valued for their medicinal and culinary qualities. In recent years salvias have been rapidly growing in popularity, and no wonder, since these members of the mint family are so diverse in fragrance, bloom, habit, and color. And many are drought tolerant, an added bonus in these times of xeriscaping. ☼

Horticulture in the Wild

Experience Horticulture in the Wild on a 160 acre ranch in the heart of the Gila National Forest near Reserve, New Mexico. Set in this classic Southwest spot near the San Francisco canyon with 700 foot wall, you can explore the flora of the Salize Mountains at 6,000 feet, home to juniper, pinyon, oak, walnut, Apache plume, and more. The main inhabitants include black bear, javelina, elk, deer, mountain lion, and beaver and not a single stoplight throughout the entire county.

Ranch accommodations offer simple comforts designed to emphasize the majesty of the environment. Meals are enriched with organically grown vegetables, chilies and beans from the ranch garden or field for authentic regional cuisine. Besides roofed facilities, tepees along the river are ready for guests wishing a more immediate experience of the land.

Visits from local naturalists as lecturers and field trip guides will round out your own enjoyment of the ranch which offers trout fishing, hiking, and swimming in the one acre pond.

Horticulture in the Wild is a tour like none other. Fees are $600 per person or $900 per couple for Sunday night through Saturday morning and include lodging, meals, and activities. Airfare is subject to the best available rates. Additional costs may include ground transport and admission to the Rio Grande Botanic Garden.

This tour is currently reserved for a week in early September 1997. Register for a complimentary slide show reception on June 22, 1997, to learn more. CAF membership is required prior to tour reservation.

Do you want to be a Garden Guardian?

Our first Guardians have brought us a dinosaur — Topiary, that is!

The California Arboretum Foundation (CAF) inaugurated THE GARDEN GUARDIANS CAMPAIGN on February 20, 1997. We now have our first Garden Guardians, the Mogannam-Rosenbaum Family.

They were eager to sponsor a topiary dinosaur T-Rex because their four-year-old daughter Rachel knows her dinosaurs.

The installation took place on April 22, 1997, at 10 a.m. in the cycad section of the Tropical Forest!

The Garden View Nursery is the source for this undertaking. It also has a trio of giraffe topiaries that would look wonderful in the African section.

Please call Beth Ellen at the Foundation office (818) 447-8207, to discuss how to support The Arboretum through the Garden Guardians Campaign. 🌿

As you know, revenue from the California Arboretum Foundation membership underwrites garden improvements, provides garden programs and initiates special events. This year we launched the Garden Guardians Campaign. But before this campaign, there already existed 43 "Garden Guardians" We call them benefactors and affiliates.

We are proud to make these special members the first recipients of our newly designed Garden Guardian pathway tiles, engraved with their respective names. 🌿

In 1947 a parcel of land, 111 acres, was purchased from Harry Chandler for what is now The Arboretum. In 1948 the CAF was incorporated to create The Arboretum. 50 years later it seems a miracle that The Arboretum is still here for us to enjoy and to treasure. Because my heritage in California really began with E. J. Baldwin, he is my frame of reference, but Oh! You won't believe what a frame in which my reference fits! Not exactly sterling silver, although what is left here, is pure gold.¹ Baldwin traveled from Hamilton, Ohio to Terre Coupee, Indiana, to Valparaiso, to New Buffalo, to San Francisco by way of Salt Lake City. Not one to travel alone, E. J. carried an ample supply of brandy, tobacco, tea and coffee. Pictured in my mind about this trip, from ancient peacock stories, is that in Salt Lake City he allegedly traded much of his brandy, tobacco, tea and coffee to the Mormons in exchange for horses after a long dinner with Brigham Young. It often occurs to me to be grateful that Mr. Baldwin had not yet begun to collect peacocks. I leave you with the frightening image of me, with my chicks, wandering aimlessly around the edge of the great Salt Lake instead of my beloved Baldwin waters! ²
